A

A. is the AXE as sharp as can be,
That the woodman uses to cut down the trees.

B

B. is the BARN
with a fine large bay,
Where the farmer boy
stows the hay.

C

C. is the CRIB that is full of CORN,
To feed the CHICKENS with, night and morn.

D

D. is the DOCK where the boat is tied,
That out on the waves like a DUCK will glide

E. is the EGG
that EDNA found
In a dear little bird's nest
on the ground.

F

F. is the FISH they call a FLOUNDER.
FRED says it must be a seven pounder.

G

G, is the GRAIN, the wheat and the rye,
That the farmer will cut down and thrash by and by

H

H, is the HORSE
that is fond of good HAY
And HARRY will harness
and drive him away

I

I, is the ICE, on which folks go to skate,
J, is the JAM, where the crowd is too great

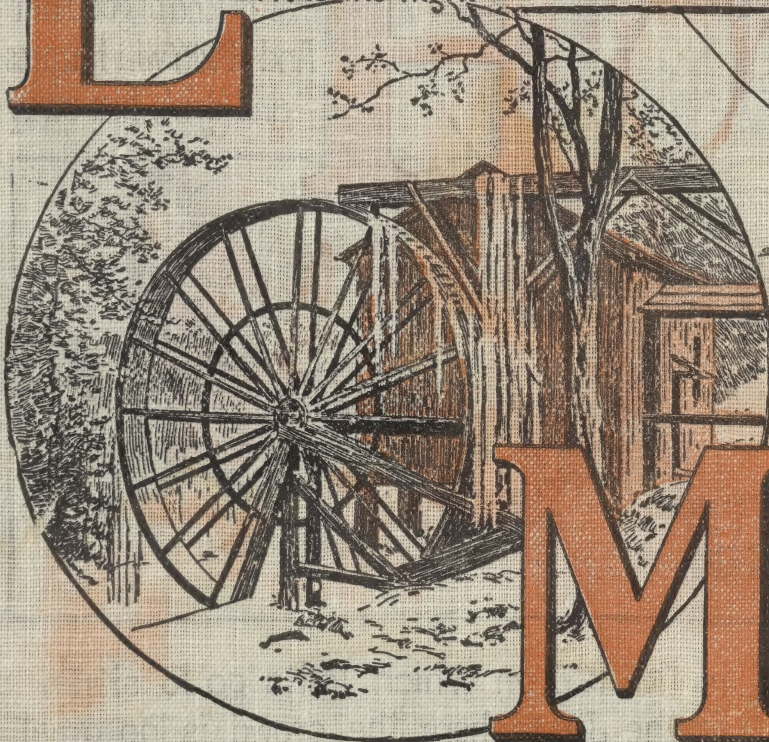

K

K. is the KITE that went up so high.
it looked like a queer little patch in the sky.

L

L. is the LANTERN
that shines out so bright,
To lighten our pathway
when dark is the night

M

M. is the MILL
where the grain
is ground into MEAL,
as the wheel goes
round and round!

N

N. is the NUTS that begin to drop.
When JACK FROST causes their jackets to pop.

O

O. is the Orchard
with Trees in a row.
Where the pears,
and Apples, and peaches grow.

P

P. is the PIG-PEN where greedy PIGS stuff;
For PIGS, big or little, get never enough.

Q

Q, is the QUAIL that keep out of sight,
But tell where they are by their calls for Bob White.

R

R, is the Rake
To rake up the hay,
That has lain in the sun
all the hot summer day

S

S, is the SWING that is hung so low;
Give us a push and away we go.

T is the Tramp who never looks clean,
But likes to go dirty, not fit to be seen.

U is the big Umbrella
we spread,
When the rain comes pattering down on our head.

V is Valentine's fine Velocipede,
on which he goes spinning at the top of his speed.

W

W. is the WELL so deep in the ground;
if you fell in it, you soon would be drowned.

X

X. is for TEN
as all the world knows:
TEN little fingers
and TEN little TOES.

Y

Z

Y. is the YOKE that you cannot bend;
Z. is for ZOE.---and this is the end.
